8/1/25	This family consists of a mother and her two daughters, ages 22 and 24, who live in Redondo Beach. One is suffering thru health issues. The search to determine the cause of her daughter's illness has caused medical bills that were not covered under her current medical insurance. Her daughter is insured by Artna, which is provided by her father, who does not live with the family. The mom pays out of pocket for all bills not covered by the insurance. Due to the initial inability to find the cause of her daughter's illness, the family also faced a disruption of income from having to take time off from work, so that she could take her daughter to these many appointments and provide for her care. To manage rent and expenses, the family moved from a 3-bedroom to a 2-bedroom apartment in the same complex. Unfortunately, the client still fell into arrears when she was forced to pay these outstanding medical bills, while continuing to search out the cause of her daughter's illness from various referrals to doctors who all required additional testing. At this time, the family has been enrolled for ongoing services and support at SC-10. Property Management is willing to work with this family to allow them to remain in their current housing, while paying an additional amount toward their arrears. 8/5/25	In May, while living in Redondo Beach, she was involved in a serious car accident with her boyfriend. In the aftermath of the crash, the contents of the car were stolen—including her service dog. Though she was eventually able to recover her dog, the loss of her belongings left her with little stability. After being discharged from the hospital, her circumstances became even more difficult. Her boyfriend relocated to Florida, and with nowhere to stay, she found herself without a home or reliable support system. She has a long history of substance use, with opiates and cocaine as her primary substances of choice, though she once maintained a period of sobriety that lasted ten years. Alongside her substance use history, she has been diagnosed with depression, anxiety, and PTSD. Her current treatment includes Subutex and Clonidine. Within the past three years, she also experienced hospitalization related to cancer treatment. Despite these challenges, she reports no suicidal or homicidal ideation, and she continues to care for her service dog as she works to rebuild her stability.
